The Weekly WORD

Editorial Commentary

Written By

Wes Feese, EDITOR

Tuesday night right before I went to bed I was half-heartedly watching Sportcenter as I barely stayed awake on my couch. A highlight came on from the United States/Panama World Cup qualifier match. The U.S. had already secured a spot in the Cup, but Panama had to win to get in, and if they didn't, Mexico would go in their place.

Anyway, the U.S., with nothing to gain – win, lose, or draw, found itself trailing by one goal in extra time (extra time is an additional two to five minutes of playing time after the clock expires to make up for injury timeouts, stoppages for fouls and free kicks, etc.). Panama's bench players were already celebrating on the bench when the Americans tied the game with just two minutes remaining. The deflated Panama squad then gave up another goal to give the U.S. the victory. Despite the win, and despite Mexico losing to Costa Rica on the same night, it was the Mexicans who most wildly celebrated America's win.

"God bless America," the Mexican announcer of the Costa Rica game shouted as his team secured a spot in the World Cup even in defeat.

This shocking comeback for the U.S. brought back memories of another soccer team, one much less talented but one I will always remember fondly: The Adair County High School soccer team of 2004.

You see, my senior year, we played a regional semifinal match against Marion County to secure a spot in the Region Championship and a shot at State. We were down 3-1 as stoppage time approached, and our coach sent seven of the younger guys to midfield so he could take his seniors out one final time. Before play stopped and the subs could be made though, we scored a goal. Our coach pulled the subs back to the bench. Just a minute later, and with one minute left in stoppage time, we scored again.

Quick note: I don't remember with 100-percent accuracy who scored the goals. Matt Jackson, our top defender, pushed up to score one, and either he or his brother Britt scored the other. Either way, we tied it right before the end of regulation, played two scoreless overtimes, and won in penalty kicks. To this day it's the most fun victory I've ever been a part of, in any type of competition.

I say all this not to brag about what we accomplished (we were beat 3-1 by Southwestern Pulaski the next day in the region finals), but to point out that current Adair County students can't make their own memory like this, because we haven't had a high school team here in five or six years.

In rural areas, when budget cuts come, sports like soccer are the first to go. They get very little support from the community and only the players and parents are upset when the programs cut. There's no big uproar; it just quietly dies.

That's a shame though. Soccer is one of the cheapest sports to support – that's why it's so popular in impoverished areas. A few balls, a couple goals and nets, uniforms – you don't need anything else.

Also, soccer is inclusive. You're not at a disadvantage being short, like in basketball. You're not at much of a disadvantage being skinny, like in football. You're not even excluded by gender, as we had girls that played on the JV team.

It saddens me because at this point even if Adair County reinstated its soccer program, it'd be starting from scratch. We had losing seasons every year from the program's inception in 1996 through my sophomore year in 2002. By my junior year, we had 10 or 12 guys that had been playing since second and third grade, and we finally had a winning record. The next year we made our run in region. Two years later, the program ended and now, even if the program was reinstated, it'd take another 10 years to achieve any success on the field.

Winning and losing isn't everything though, and with apologies to Vince Lombardi, it's not the only thing either. I learned just as much from the losing seasons and I did our winning seasons, and I regret that our current youngsters won't have that same opportunity.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Columbia/Adair County Tax And Fee Increases

Dear Editor,

This letter is regarding the new hospital tax over and above what is already being paid by Columbia/Adair County residents. I have several concerns. Is the new tax to be used to assist with the operation of the hospital or is it to be used to pay a bank in Danville, Ky? If the money is being used to pay a bank in Danville, Ky., I believe the decision should be appealed due to the fact that there is not enough case law based upon this decision. I have spoken to several Columbia/Adair County residents who feel that this decision to tax is illegal which is one of the reasons why it should be appealed. Also, who made the decision to accept this ruling without the right to appeal? When the U.S. government's "so-called" bailouts of the larger banks occurred, the banks that received taxpayers' money had assets to back up these loans. The

Halloween

Dear Editor,

Happy Halloween. It is that time of year again. Time for trick or treaters. Don't worry about candy to give out to the children. Most of all give a loving smile. If you get low on candy, go to the kitchen and look around. There may be crackers which are good after eating candy. There is usually something you can give. Most of all give love. Write a note saying I love you. That means a lot; we all need love. Be careful, and have a good time.

Love,
Doris Shirley

would receive extensive treatment three times per week.

"We had a decision to make," Mrs. Vanarsdale said. "Cardinal Hill helped us make arrangements with the Ronald McDonald House so that we could stay in Lexington and continue Heather's treatment. Without them, we couldn't have done it."

The Ronald McDonald House, Hedley said, served over 2,400 families last year in Lexington and Louisville combined. The House provides a place for families to stay while their children are in the hospital, and volunteers provide meals to the families during their stay.

"We want to be a home away from home," Hedley said. "These families are going through the toughest time of their lives. We don't want them to worry about those every day things, their focus needs to remain on their child."

Despite the assumed affiliation due to the name, Hedley says the Louisville RMHC receives only 28-percent of its funding from the area McDonald's restaurants—with the remaining 72-percent coming from volunteers and donations.

"We're really grateful we live in a community, state and region that is so giving," Hedley said. "The support you give helps families from right here."

Hedley says that in his 12 years in his current role, 54 Adair County families have used the Louisville RMHC.

Mrs. Vanarsdale added that the Lexington House meets its goal as well.

"It really is a home away from home," Vanarsdale began. "Everyone is there for the same reason, they're going through the same thing."

"What's great is to see the families there supporting one another," Hedley added. "During the evening hours, you see a lot of communication and support because they can relate to what the other families are going through."

"We've become part of the family there," Vanarsdale continued. "We want to thank them, as well as all of the people who have supported us and kept praying for us. This is all thanks to you."

In other news, the Chamber:

their own, Adair finished in Fourth Place overall, ahead of more than 20 larger bands.

"Our finals performance wasn't as good as prelims," Case continued. "It wasn't bad but we need to find that consistency."

Adair will have a chance to be more consistent Saturday, as the Road to State kicks off with state quarterfinals right her in Columbia, at the Lindsey Wilson College football field.

"We've got to get through this week," Case said plainly. "After that it's just day by day, note by note, trying to do our best."

•Tax Increase

banks that did not have assets did not receive taxpayers' money. Did the hospital have enough assets to secure this type of loan and did they show the ability to repay this loan? If not, the bank should at least take part, if not all, of the responsibility for making a bad loan and not hold the hospital 100-percent responsible.

The Chairman of the Board/CEO's responsibility is to answer to the Board of Directors—the Board of Directors should answer to the taxpayers. Our city and local governing bodies are responsible to the taxpayers of Columbia/Adair County. Evidently, we as citizens of Columbia/Adair County and local officials were not watching what the Board of Directors/CEO's were doing with taxpayers' money. How many banks does the hospital owe? Is this setting a precedent for this and other banks to do the same? If this tax is used to pay the bank – when the bank is paid, will this tax cease or will it continue? Tax and spend is not the answer to this situation. The taxpayers of Columbia/Adair County are under enough tax burden already. Many try to maintain necessities and daily living expenses. Increases in taxes and fees have made it very difficult to maintain the same standard of living. What percentage of tax increases and fees in the past five years have been placed on the residents of Columbia/Adair County? Where does it end?

It is the responsibility of all Boards and Chairman of Boards/CEO's to look out for the best interest of the citizens of Columbia/Adair County. If these tax increases continue, it will make it impossible for us to compete with other counties to bring in new industry (which will bring in new revenue and taxes) because our tax rates and fees will be too high for us to compete. It seems that when we come into a budget shortfall, we think the only solution is to raise taxes. Tax and spend and increasing fees is not always the only solution. Sometimes looking into the past can predict the future.

The hospital is a business – if a business does not have customers, they cannot stay in business – if the hospital does not have patients, they cannot stay in business. The hospital "must have" community support in order for it to survive – not necessarily higher taxes! I am not placing blame on any one particular faction of our local government but only suggesting that we need to take a closer look at the way our taxes and fees are being used.

AUTHOR

Leigh Anne Florence is Kentucky born, Kentucky bred, Kentucky educated, a Kentucky Colonel, and the Kentucky author of the popular series, Woody, The Kentucky Wiener. A native of Murray, Kentucky, Florence is a 1990 graduate of Calloway County High School. In 1996 she received her Masters of Music Education from Murray State University. She now resides in Shepherdsville, Kentucky with husband Ron and a host of animals, most notably her black and tan miniature dachshund, Woody, who is the star character in her children's series, Woody, The Kentucky Wiener.

After seven years as a public school music teacher, Florence resigned from her teaching duties to concentrate on writing and public speaking. Leigh Anne, accompanied by Ron and the entire wiener dog gang, spends her days in schools, libraries, and other venues speaking on Woody's Five Ways to Be Successful. In addition to schools and libraries, Leigh Anne has become an in-demand speaker for church events, women's' groups, and community organizations.

ILLUSTRATOR

Kentucky artist Chris Ware, being the father of seven, and consequently, a part-time small animal wrangler (snakes, frogs, hedge hogs, cats, dogs, guinea pigs, baby birds, turtles and fish), it is inevitable that kids and critters are his favorite things to illustrate. Family dogs Stella and Moose were consulted on each and every drawing of Woody and Chloe, and they have given their highest accolades... 5 (out of 5) barks!

Let's Read! CHAPTER FIVE

"Pa! Bonnie's sick!" I said, noticing something was wrong with the milk Bonnie the Brown Swiss was producing.

"Looks great to me," Pa replied after examining Bonnie and her milk.

"Bonnie's milk is white," I said. "Bonnie is a Brown Swiss. Her milk should be chocolate!"

Everyone, including Bunny the cat, giggled.

Then I asked, "Who milks the bull?" because I hoped it wasn't going to be Chloe or me.

No sooner had Granny and Pa stopped laughing from the "chocolate milk" comment than they were in a full-blown giggle again.

"You don't milk bulls, son," Pa said.

"Why is he here then?" Chloe asked, confused like I was.

"Well," Pa said as if he were searching for the right words, "a bull is a male cow who is a daddy. Male cows don't produce milk; it comes only from female cows who have had calves. So, except for Daddy Bull, we don't need bulls or steers, which are male cows who aren't dads. If a mama cow gives birth to a boy, once it's old enough, we sell it to a cattle farm. The cattle farmer uses it for beef, and we make a little money. It's a win-win situation."

As Pa stood up, he said, "I don't know about you, but I'm ready to count sheep."

"I'll help," I replied, grabbing my jacket. Granny giggled. "That's an expression meaning Pa's going to bed," she said, stopping me before I went outside to help Pa take inventory of the sheep. "And I suspect two little doggies are ready to count sheep too!"

If the milk was the best thing I had ever tasted, the featherbed was the best thing I'd ever slept on. Granny lifted Chloe and me onto the gigantic bed. As soon as she covered us with the colorful handmade patchwork quilt, we were snoozing –maybe even snoring. It had been a very enjoyable – and long – day, filled with lots of hard work, good food and many laughs. Chloe and I slept through the night. We never moved until we heard a rooster crow and smelled the most delicious bacon and pancakes. Using a step stool to crawl out of bed, we saw a note from Granny. "Good morning, doggies. Here are some things you'll need today." There were two long-sleeve plaid shirts, two pairs of bib overalls, two large straw hats, two red bandannas and a bottle of sunscreen.

Dressed, ready and doused in sun protection, we walked downstairs where Granny and Pa were waiting for us to eat breakfast.

We sat down, removed our hats and bowed our heads as Pa gave thanks for the food. Then Granny passed the delicious breakfast foods. "After the morning milking, feeding and chores, we'll visit a neighboring farm," Pa said.

"TerRUFFic!" we exclaimed. Granny had talked to our mom that morning while we were sleeping. She persuaded our parents to let us stay for a few days. We missed our family terribly but knew we would see them soon. Visiting another farm would be fun – and would help pass the time.

"Will we be milking cows here too?" I asked as we pulled into the driveway of Missus Farms later that morning.

"This is a beef cattle farm, son," Pa explained. "No milking going on here. Just like dairy farms, a beef cattle farm is another type of livestock farm. Livestock farmers raise cows, goats, sheep, pigs and other animals to eat or sell for others to eat. Kentucky is the largest cattle-producing state east of the Mississippi River. There are about 38,000 cattle farmers and more than two million cattle and calves here in our state. In fact, livestock and livestock products account for about half of Kentucky's farm income."

I was listening to Pa talk about cattle when I smelled the worst smell ever, like dead fish, rotten eggs, filthy socks and soured milk had been mixed together and left in the sun for three weeks. "P.U.! What is that smell?" I asked, covering my nose with one paw. Suddenly I realized the source of the putrid odor. Surely it wasn't what I thought it was!

A KENTUCKY ADVENTURE

ACTIVITIES FOR TEACHERS AND STUDENTS

- Woody learned a male cow who is a daddy is called a bull, a male cow that isn't a dad is called a steer. What is a female cow called before she has a calf? What is she called after she has a calf?
  - Not only do male, female, and young cows have different names, so do many other animals. Using a book in the library, find the name for the male, female, and young of the following animals:
    - Chicken
    - Deer
    - Goose
    - Horse
    - Sheep
  - Milk is a wonderful source of calcium and is good for the body. List three ways milk helps the body. Compare your list with a friend.
  - Woody said the featherbed was the best thing he had ever slept on. Watch the video of Grandma's Featherbed (written and sung by John Denver) <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GtKWdyGevmw> and answer the following questions:
    - How big was the featherbed?
    - How many people and animals would it hold?
    - What would occur after supper at Grandma's house?
    - How many geese did it take to make the featherbed?
  - Look through your local newspaper. Do you see a featherbed for sale? If not, are there any patchwork quilts for sale?
  - Woody and Chloe removed their hats at the table. Why? What are other ways you can show respect at the table?
  - At the end of the chapter, Woody smells the worst aroma he has ever smelled. He describes it smelling like dead fish, rotten eggs, and other putrid smells. Email Woody at woody@thewoodybooks.com and tell him a good aroma you have smelled. Yummy cookies? Be as descriptive as possible. Answers will be posted on Woody's website under the diary section.
  - How's your scrapbook doing? Once you cut out Chapter 5 and paste it in your scrapbook it will be half way complete. At the end of ten weeks, you will have your very own Woody book to read to others. Invite Woody to your school or event and have him put his paw print on your scrapbook!
  - Read along with Woody. Visit Woody's online doghouse at www.thewoodybooks.com or www.kypress.com and read each chapter together.

October 20th-26th is Kentucky Safe Schools week!

This week is all about bullying prevention in our schools and community. As you probably know, bullying can come in many forms. According to "Stop Bullying Now 2013" it is estimated that 160,000 children miss school daily due to fear or intimidation by their peers. Statistics also show that 56% of all students in the U.S. have personally witnessed some form of bullying. With this, we need to do our best to make Adair County Middle School bully free. To accomplish this goal, starting October 21st, the Adair county schools have come together with the entire community to pledge to work for a safe, nurturing school environment.

Join us at Adair County Middle school to S.T.O.P. (safety, teamwork, opportunities, and power) bullying, violence, and risky behavior in our school system! Monday through Thursday's events will start at 12:45 and run until 1:15.

Events and topics are as follows:

Monday, October 21st- Officer Kevin Atwood will be speaking about cyber bullying.

Tuesday, October 22nd- Constable Jason Rector will be speaking about sexting.

Wednesday, October 23rd- an Adanta representative will be speaking about self harm.

Thursday, October 24th- Ellen Zornes will be talking to us about risky behaviors.

Friday, the 25th-We will be finishing out the week with a S.T.O.P. rally.

This rally will be in the ACMS gym and will run from 8:30am until 10:00 am. We will be having many guest speakers.

They will include Lindsey Wilson College's Dean of Students Chris Schmidt, LWC students, Officer Kevin Atwood, and a State Police Representative.

We are pleased to invite the community all days of the week.

Come on out and join us as we educate our community and children about bullying as well as prevention tactics!

Adair County Endorses School Safety Week

JUDGE ANN MELTON AND MAJOR MARK HARRIS today officially proclaimed October 20-26, 2013, as ADAIR COUNTY Safe Schools Week.

Join the "Safety Team," take every "Opportunity" to use your "Power" to S.T.O.P.! Bullying, Violence and Risky Behavior in our Schools!

This year Kentucky Safe Schools Week is set for October 20-26, 2013. Kentucky Center for School Safety encourages every school across Kentucky to participate. Since last December's tragic events, Kentucky along with the rest of America, has reexamined, reevaluated and prioritized their school safety concerns and needs. The Kentucky Safe Schools Week theme this year addresses the cruelty of bullying, the fear of violence and the self-destruction of high-risk behavior on our campuses through education. During the week students, staff, parents and community members will be encouraged to join in and be part of the school's safety team to stop a multitude of safety issues. This week's positive focus will be on "Safety," "Teamwork," "Opportunities" and "Power" all stakeholders will be encouraged to get involved and S.T.O.P.! Bullying, Violence and Risky Behavior in our Schools which supports a safe, respectful, climate where all can succeed.

During this weeklong observance, a concerted effort will be used to bring together all Kentuckians to improve safety in our schools by educating students, staff and community members about school safety issues such as bullying, cyber-bullying, conflict, gangs, substance abuse, internet safety and self-harm. The phrase "Join the team" encourages student groups to find opportunities to use their power to make schools a neighborhood "sanctuary" for academic, athletic and social purposes. Teachers will have a variety of resources available for them to use during this week, including: an online S.T.O.P.! Pledge, PowerPoint presentations, lessons, interactive websites and much more. Resources will also be available for school administrators, parents and community members at www.kysafeschools.org/ssw.php

THE ONLINE S.T.O.P.! PLEDGE

I pledge to:

- Keep my school Safe by treating others as I want to be treated
- Join others in my school and use Teamwork to prevent bullying, cyber-bullying and other risky behaviors
- Take the Opportunity to think before I act and help others when I see the need
- Use my Power to act respectfully and help keep my school safe for all

The Kentucky "S.T.O.P.! Bullying, Violence and Risky Behaviors in our Schools" campaign is sponsored by the Kentucky Center for School Safety. This observance complements the national campaign. America's Safe Schools Week is sponsored by the National School Safety Center. "The education of our students and staff on topics as fundamental as bullying, violence and risky behavior in our schools is a key element in the development of our schools' comprehensive emergency management plans. Please join with schools across the Commonwealth during October 20-26th and celebrate Kentucky Safe Schools Week in your school and community, fostering a safer school climate for all." said Jon Akers, Executive Director, KCSS.

Bro. Steve Pescosolido with the Adair County Ministerial Association delivered a message at 11 a.m., and he was followed on stage by a singing performance from Sharon Payne and Karen Pescosolido.

"I want to give a special thanks to the Adair County Ministerial Association," Loy says. "They did a great job and were a big help to us."

The crowd continued to grow throughout the afternoon Saturday, and the musical performances became more energetic as more people joined the audience.

George Jones impersonator Buddy Willingham delivered spot-on covers of the Possum's biggest hits, and left those in attendance impressed.

"He sounds just like George Jones," one observer said. "I can't believe he can actually sing like that."

Willingham was followed by local rock band No Deceit, a four-piece outfit that played a mixture of classic and contemporary country and rock music, covering artists as diverse as Bob Segar, Old Crow Medicine Show, and Dolly Parton.

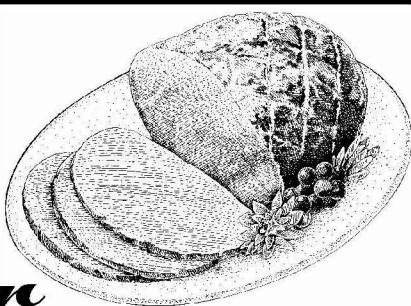

The headliner for the weekend though was Collin Raye, and the multi-platinum artist didn't disappoint.

Taking the stage just after 7 p.m., Raye lived up to the hype and the crowd responded. The crowd was at its biggest as the night wound down, and Raye's collection of hits from the 1990s provided a fitting soundtrack to the end of the successful weekend.

"We couldn't be happier with how well everything went," Loy says. "We hope everyone plans on coming back next year."

Overmatched Indians Fall 41-0 To South Warren

Adair County traveled to Bowling Green last Friday night for a Class 3A battle with the 6-1 powerhouse South Warren Spartans. The vaunted South Warren defense stifled the Adair offense, and the home squad's read option rushing and shotgun passing attack proved too balanced for the Indians, as the Tribe fell 41-0.

"I was proud of our effort against a very good football team," Assistant Coach Robert Meachum said. "We showed some fight and kept attacking, it was good to see the guys return to getting after the ball."

The Spartans would receive the ball first and assert their dominance from the start.

Two read option runs, followed by a slant to the left that slipped behind the Adair secondary brought the opposition down to the nine yard line. A penalty, stuffed run attempt and incomplete pass left the Spartans in third and long, but quarterback Jay Eblen found his target in the corner of the endzone for a touchdown on the game's opening drive. The kick was good, and South Warren led 7-0 just moments into the contest.

Adair's offense was completely shut down on their first possession, as the South Warren pressure resulted in two incompletions and negated a run attempt, forcing a quick three-and-out. The Indian defense would hold, however, and forced a 41-yard field goal attempt that found its way through the uprights for a 10-0 South Warren lead.

Two more Adair incompletions and a rush attempt that gained zero yards sent Brandon Burton back onto the field for another punt. Burton's punt took a favorable Adair bounce and settled around the 50 yard line. South Warren stayed in attack mode, throwing toward the sideline on first down as Eblen connected on the go route for a gain of 41. Two read options later, Eblen's keeper crossed the goalline for another score and the extra point put the Spartans ahead by 17.

Burton would punt from inside his own 20 again on the next drive, and after blasting the kick out past midfield, the Indians forced a fumble on a first down run, falling on the ball and taking over with their best field position of the contest so far.

The field position would be for naught, however, as two incompletions in the flat and a Jake Hixson keeper resulted in a loss of two yards and Burton was out to punt again. This time, the ball did not fall safely to the grass, instead finding its way into the hands of Austin McElwain, who broke one tackle, juiced another line of Indian tacklers, found a seam and raced to the endzone for a touchdown making it 24-0 South Warren.

The already injury-plagued Indian squad suffered another loss on the next drive, as QB Jake Hixson limped off the field after a carry. Shea Martin entered the game at QB for the Indians but the incredible Spartan pressure forced him to scramble for survival and throw the ball away.

The overly-aggressive South Warren attack roughed Burton on the ensuing punt, and the Adair drive continued. Following the penalty, Adair fed the ball twice to freshman tailback Lonnie Grant, but Grant was swallowed up behind the line of scrimmage both times by UK-commit Adrian Middleton. Burton punted again down to the 38 yard line, and Austin Horton made an impressive open field tackle after a gain of one yard to prevent another punt-return disaster for the Tribe.

The Adair defense would hold on the following drive, as the Indians stuffed a rush attempt up the middle and lineman Carlos Mendoza plowed his way into the backfield for a tackle for loss on third down, forcing another South Warren field goal. Kicker Andrew Upton's attempt went wide, and the score remained 24-0.

After Martin's injury on the previous drive, Brandon Burton was in at QB for the Indians. Even with the third QB of the game under center, the South Warren rush was unwavering, forcing another three-and-out and following it up with another read option touchdown run two plays into the next possession. The Spartans would tack on a field goal with time expiring on their next drive to head into the locker room with a 34-0 lead.

The Indian woes continued after the intermission, as Adair County fumbled the opening kickoff return of the second half. Mendoza blew up another rush attempt on first down, but Eblen found a wide-open receiver in the front corner of the endzone on second down for a quick score, the final one for either team in the contest.

The 41-0 lead just two plays into the half prompted South Warren Head Coach Mark Nelson to make wholesale substitutions, but the Spartan defense, which had allowed only 11 points all season, continued to suffocate the Adair offense. The teams traded field position and provided playing time for less experienced players as the final horn sounded with the margin staying the same.

Adair garnered just 11 yards through the air in addition to 11 more on the ground, while South Warren accumulated 194 passing yards and 169 rushing yards in the victory.

"The past few weeks we had seen the guys regress in the fundamentals, but we got back on track a bit tonight," Meachum added. "We kept our linebackers clean and they were able to run downhill and tackle, and we had a lot of underclassmen make the most of playing against a very sound football team."

"Right now, these guys are just focused on winning out, securing a playoff spot, and finishing with a winning record."

"We kept our linebackers clean and they were able to run downhill and tackle, and we had a lot of underclassmen make the most of playing against a very sound football team."

Coach Meachum

If you've read this column before (and if not, shame on you), you know I've taken my shots at Major League Baseball. I'm not really even a casual fan of the product. That shouldn't be mistaken as believing I don't like the game itself—I do. In fact, I think Little League baseball is one of the best sporting experiences in the world, and I even used this space to praise the Little League World Series back in August. I think high school baseball is nearly as good. It's competitive, it's entertaining, and it's played during some of the most beautiful months of the year.

Major League Baseball, however, is unwatchable during the regular season. I do have friends and family members that watch every Reds game and follow the team religiously, and I honestly question their sanity. Game times are upwards of four hours, and a 162-game schedule puts a team on the field every night of the week that isn't spent traveling. By mid-summer, a huge chunk of teams are out of playoff contention, and the others continue to play the same handful of divisional opponents over and over until it starts to snow and the playoffs finally begin.

But wow, the playoffs are good. This MLB postseason has been packed with competitive games and series, dramatic finishes and big-time performances from some of the biggest names in the sport.

Earlier this week, Red Sox slugger David Ortiz hit a game-tying grand slam in the eighth inning against the Detroit Tigers. Tigers centerfielder Tori Hunter actually flipped over the outfield wall into the Boston bullpen attempting to catch the ball, and a Boston police officer who was working security in the bullpen celebrated with both arms raised in joy before coming to the aid of Hunter.

That's a moment. That's the type of thing we love to see. That's the type of thing that makes you wonder what on earth the other 648 hours (or 27 days, the approximate time it took to play the 162 regular season games) were spent doing.

I understand from a league perspective why the schedule is so long. More games means more attendance and merchandise and concession money as well as more television and sponsorship dollars. The financial bottom line supports a long season, so I have no delusions that it will ever be shortened. There's also the historical aspect. Baseball fans, unlike those in any other sport, love their numbers and statistics, and changing the length of the season would significantly impact the record books from that point on, just as the move from 154 to 162 games did in 1961 and 1962.

So the schedule will stay at 162. Teams will keep playing each other 20 times a year because the integrity of the game (or at least the owners' pocketbooks) depends on it. Surely, however, something can be done about the length of the game. I can watch a Little League game in an hour. A long high school game may last two. Yet somehow it takes the professionals an extra two hours to play an extra couple of innings. Apparently they're professional baseball players the way doctors are healthcare professionals or members of Congress are professional decision makers and legislators.

Actually, the reason is a simple one. Everyone reading this column can count on one hand the amount of times you've seen a Little League or high school player step out of the batter's box, adjust his gloves, tap his cleats, roll his shoulders, re-embroider his jersey, say The Lord's Prayer, switch helmets, paint a watercolor memento of the sunset in left field and step back in to take ball two—all once the pitcher is done checking the runner at first.

Senior Profiles

Austin Roy

Our look at ACHS Fall Sport Seniors continues this week with two more members of the ACHS Football team. First, we spotlight Austin Roy.

Austin, a four year member of the program, has excelled the last two seasons on both sides of the ball, bolstering the Adair secondary as a defensive back and becoming the primary receiving target on offense. It's not just the productivity that Austin says makes his senior year special, however.

"It feels different being the oldest guys out there," he said. "I'm also a captain, so I have to take on that leadership role and set an example because my teammates are looking to me and expecting things from me."

Thus far in his career, Austin has filled that role and set an example, earning All-District honors last season while the Indians made the playoffs for the first time in several seasons, two accomplishments that Austin said he is most proud of. That success has come from learning some of the most important lessons that his time with the football team has taught him.

"Things aren't handed to you," he began. "If you want something, you have to earn it. Life isn't easy, but you have to do right, stay true to yourself, and you can accomplish great things."

That wisdom, along with countless other lessons, is something Austin has shared as a senior during his time hanging out off the field with his team, which he said is his favorite memory from his time with the program.

"Your teammates will always be there for you," he said. "You have to be there for them as well. You can't give up on yourself or let them give up."

"Football has given me more character," he added. "It showed me to always try my hardest, to never limit myself, to respect others and always do the right thing."

With those lessons learned, Austin plans to attend Western Kentucky University next fall, where he will major in communications while pursuing a career in news broadcasting.

Sam Locker

We continue this week's Senior Spotlight with another Indian Football player, Sam Locker.

Sam, a four-year member of the program, expected his increased role and responsibility after a junior season in which he earned the Most Improved award.

"I knew I'd have to set that example for my younger teammates," he said. "That's something I didn't give much thought in my first few years, but I definitely try and do that now."

It's not just the examples set, however, that Sam remembers from the last two years.

"I loved the game against Clinton County last year," he recalled. "We were winning big, and the trash talking along the line was so much fun. It's always great being out there with my teammates."

Sam says that the countless moments shared with his team off the field make it impossible to choose just one favorite, but says that hanging out after practice is when most of the best ones have been made. Despite all the fun after practice, Sam maintains that he urges the guys to remain all business on the field.

"You have to play your heart out in every practice rep and every snap during the game," he explained. "It all goes by too fast, you have to make the most of it and work for what you want. Nothing is free, you have to put the time in to get there."

That work ethic has inspired Sam to pursue playing football at the next level, and he hopes to play at the college of his choice while obtaining a degree in athletic training and physical therapy.

"I think football has given me a strong work ethic," he said. "It's made me want to be the best in everything I do."

One man's fantasy team is another man's bench.

Thank goodness that week is over. What a disaster. A slew of guys that are either always studs or were a great start given this week's matchup notched absolutely zero points. If you were one of the folks who suffered from the Jimmy Graham goose egg or watched Cecil Shorts score as many points as I did, you're probably feeling the mid-season grind as you look at the scoreboard of your game.

That's why I'm here, although in fairness to myself, this season occasionally reminds us of just how much luck (no Andrew) is involved in this game. Let's put the luck on our side with some research. These are the guys you should start this week (and pray for the best):

Sam Bradford, QB, St. Louis Rams: I almost suggested a start for Bradford last week, but he's been so Jekyll and Hyde throughout his career that it felt too risky. All he did was post his second consecutive three-TD stat line. In a year where guys like Eli, Kaepernick, Brady and company are falling far below expectations, Bradford can be a quality safety valve for a struggling roster.

The Rams square off with Carolina this week, and while the Panthers D is allowing roughly 13 points per game this season, that figure is a bit skewed due to their schedule. With a crew of young receivers that continue to grow, including rookie Tayvon Austin and TE Jared Cook, Bradford has a balance of weapons that allow him to find the open man instead of forcing the ball to one elite playmaker.

Nick Foles, QB, Philadelphia Eagles: I missed on Foles last week, telling you guys to sit him as he proceeded to torch the much-improved Tampa secondary to the tune of four TDs. It's time to admit that, even if it doesn't result in a win, Chip Kelly's offense is proving to be a fantasy goldmine. With Michael Vick still slightly banged up, and Foles performing so well on Sunday, he's a safe bet to start again this week.

With the Cowboys on the schedule, that's great news. Jerry's Boys are ranked 30th in the league in passing yards allowed, and with the Eagles' terrible defense, the game figures to be another NFC East shootout. You want as many players going in that one as you can get, starting with Foles.

Giovani Bernard, RB, Cincinnati Bengals: The rookie out of North Carolina was a popular choice as a mid-round sleeper among fantasy owners all summer, and his talent and production have made it clear why. The issue thus far has been the way Cincy has used him, or rather, hasn't used him. When he touches the ball, good things happen. The Bengals, as they have proven during my lifetime, don't seem to enjoy good things happening, so veteran bell cow Benjarvus Green-Ellis continues to grab the bulk of the carries.

Now, none of that sounded like an explanation to why you should start Gio, did it? Let me finish, Kanye. The Bengals looked to find their passing game groove on Sunday against the Bills, and Bernard's versatility was one of the primary benefactors. Against a soft Lions pass defense this week, Bernard figures to put points on the board yet again, as he inches his foot further in the door of becoming the Bengals' starting RB.

These are the players you should sit this week, which inevitably means they'll explode for career games. Use reverse psychology on your fantasy team if you dare.

Trent Richardson, RB, Indianapolis Colts: I've talked a lot about Richardson in past weeks, and he's on the radar again in Week 7. This week, however, the Broncos are on the opposite sideline. With Peyton Manning squaring off against the franchise he carried for more than a decade, this has all the makings of a QB shootout with heir apparent Andrew Luck. The Denver offense is prolific, and a motivated Manning figures to keep the scoreboard warm, meaning less carries for Richardson—and therefore, less yardage and fantasy points.

Andre Johnson, WR, Houston Texans: This one is risky, and I know many of you will likely go ahead and start him anyway. That's fine, and I hope it works out (as long as I'm not playing him this week, I haven't checked yet). But count me out on Andre this week. Although it was to the delight of Houston fans, QB Matt Schaub went down with an injury Sunday, allowing popular backup T.J. Yates to come into the game. With so many years of familiarity between Andre and Schaub, it stands to reason that the connection between he and Yates won't be as strong just yet.

Couple that with an injury to starting TE Owen Daniels, and bring the undefeated Kansas City Chiefs to town, and you have a recipe for an ugly fantasy day in Houston. The Chiefs will likely key on Johnson and running back Arian Foster, and while the two long-time stars could very well produce, I'd wait until next week to take the risk on Houston players.

Geno Smith, QB, New York Jets: Geno has been very good this year as a rookie, improving the spirits of NYJ fans on the simple fact that he's not Mark Sanchez. However, it appears the film on Geno is making its way around the league, as teams are starting to give him looks that they know make him uncomfortable.

If there's one team we can be sure utilizes game (read: practice too) film, it's the New England Patriots, who the Jets face this week. We saw on Sunday what the Pats defense can do to even the best QBs like Drew Brees when they don't have a solid running game, and the Jets are no New Orleans Saints. History tells us a rookie wall is coming. Geno's may be looming in the near future with a dingy hoodie on.

Former Indians

Kevin Bridgewaters, Guard, Timba Timisoara

The runner-up for Kentucky Mr. Basketball in 2003 played two games last week for his newest pro team, and continued to put up solid numbers despite Timba Timisoara only winning one of the two contests.

Bridgewaters was limited to only 13 minutes of action last Wednesday in a 106-33 drubbing of Romanian League cellar-dweller Farul Constanta, but still managed 14 points on just nine shot attempts, and added two assists and two rebounds to the winning effort.

The team's momentum was stifled in their next contest, however, as Oradea handled Timba Timisoara easily, 92-63.

Bridgewaters was back to his full allotment of playing time in the loss, and scored 18 points in his 32 minutes on the court. He also contributed four assists and a rebound as his squad dropped to 1-2 on the young season. He'll be back on the court Saturday for a matchup with Rovinari.

Season averages: 16 points, 4 assists, 1.3 steals, 51.4 FG%

Notice is hereby given that the Columbia/Adair Utilities District, 109 Grant Lane, Columbia, KY 42728, has filed an application with the Energy and Environment Cabinet to reconstruct and stabilize the banks of the Russell Creek adjacent to the Columbia Waste Water Treatment Plant which were left severely eroded and generally unsound following the floods of May 2010. This will be accomplished by reconstructing the earthen banks with a large diameter rip rap stone material. In addition, a large selection of the hillside above the plant has become unstable and is creeping toward the facility. A reinforced concrete retaining wall will be constructed to combat the landslide. The property is located adjacent to Russell Creek within the City of Columbia near the intersection of Campbellville Street and Oak Street. Any comments or objections concerning this application shall be directed to: Kentucky Division of Water, Surface Water Permit Branch, Flood Plain Management Section 200 Fair Oaks Lane, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. Floodplain and Wetland Notice of Explanation Activity in a 100-Year Floodplain

To: All interested Agencies, Groups and Individuals

This is to give notice that the City of Columbia under 24 CFR Part 58 has conducted an evaluation as required by Executive Order 11988 and/or 11990, in accordance with HUD regulations at 24 CFR 55.20 Subpart C Procedures for Making Determinations on Floodplain Management, to determine the potential affect that its project in the floodplain and wetland will have on the human environment for the Columbia Wastewater Treatment Plant Site Stabilization Project under project #11D-014. The proposed project is located at 509 Campbellville Road, Columbia, Adair County, Kentucky 42728.

The project proposes to reconstruct and stabilize the banks of Russell Creek adjacent to the Adair Utilities Wastewater Treatment Plant. Construction will occur at the driest possible period and if required a cofferdam will be implemented to divert the flow of water away from the construction activities.

Protecting the environmental integrity of Russell Creek will be a top priority during construction. Best management practices will be established and strictly enforced during the construction. Further input and guidance will be requested from the Army Corps of Engineers and the Kentucky Department of Environmental Protection.

City of Columbia has considered the following alternatives and mitigation measures to be taken to minimize adverse impacts and to restore and preserve natural and beneficial values. Every effort will be made to protect aquatic life and plant life from any negative impacts due to sedimentation and erosion. According to state and federal wildlife agencies, there are no listed or endangered species within the immediate area of the project. Every action will be taken to minimize impacts to the floodplain. Compliance with local, state, and federal standards will be made.

City of Columbia has re-evaluated the alternatives to building in the floodplain and has determined that it has no practicable alternative. Environmental files that document compliance with steps 3 through 6 of [Executive Order 11988 and/or 11990], are available for public inspection, review and copying upon request at the times and location delineated in the last paragraph of this notice for receipt of comments. No additional negative environmental impacts have been noted. The benefits of protecting the wastewater treatment plant from future flooding appear to outweigh any foreseeable and temporary negative impacts.

Written comments must be received by the City of Columbia at the following address on or before November 4, 2013: Mayor Mark Harris, 116 Campbellville Street, Columbia, Adair County, Kentucky and 270-384-6183, Attention: Mark Harris, Mayor, during the hours of 8:00 AM – 4:00 PM, Monday – Friday.

calling off the signal from his catcher a half dozen times, kicking the dirt on the mound and visiting with his manager who brought him in the game specifically because the guy at the plate hits four percentage points lower against right-handed pitchers.

A 1-0 game recently took 4:23 to play. They scored one run. One. Americans complain about 90-minute soccer matches, a lack of scoring and diva-like overly-dramatic players, but baseball is our National Pastime. And it's not as if these are old habits. You don't see this ridiculous behavior at any other level. This isn't a routine the player has had since he was six years old. In fact, I'm pleasantly surprised this trend hasn't trickled down to the pee-wee ranks—yet.

The reality is, nothing is going to be done. Umpires don't seem to care about enforcing any time rules, and while casual fans cry that instant replay will "make the game too long," the breaks between innings and even half-innings continues to be becoming long enough to re-watch the entire game to that point.

So just do what I do. Skip the regular season. Check Sportscenter or the newspaper box score every now and then to see which of the eight teams who actually have a shot at winning the World Series won that day, and then tune in for the playoffs. Assuming you don't find it odd to be watching baseball in November, that is. You'd be surprised what household chores you can accomplish between the second and seventh inning, too. There's even time for a nap, and the choreographed dance routines between pitches make for the perfect lullaby.
